

Armistice Not Signed But Envoys Received the Terms This Afternoon

GERMAN DELEGATES SEEKING ARMISTICE MEET GENERAL FOCH

PLENIPOTENTIARIES ARRIVED AT GENERAL FOCH'S HEADQUARTERS AT NINE O'CLOCK THIS MORNING

WITHHOLDING NO NEWS

President Wilson Issues Statement Claiming That No News Is Being Withheld. Will Make Public All News Immediately

London, E. O. S.—A note picked up by the French wireless from the German delegates to the Imperial Chancellor states that the delegates have met Foch and have been handed the allied terms. It also states that the Germans are given seventy-two hours to either accept or refuse and that one or the other must be accomplished. A courier has been sent with the text to Spa as it is the only practical means of communication.

PARIS STATEMENT

Paris, E. O. S., Nov. 8.—An official note received here this afternoon states that the German delegates have arrived at General Foch's headquarters and have been given the allied conditions for the same.

The proposal for an immediate conclusion of war and a suspension of fighting has been rejected by Marshal Foch.

Lansing's Statement

Washington, Nov. 8.—At President Wilson's direction, Secretary Lansing issued a statement shortly before noon today, that any statement that news reaching the government concerning armistice negotiations was being withheld, was utterly false and that as soon as a decision in regard to the armistice was reached it would be made public immediately by the government. Mr. Lansing's statement said:

"I am requested and authorized by the President to state that no information reaching this government concerning the armistice negotiations in France has been withheld, that any statement to the contrary is utterly false and that as soon as a definite decision in regard to the armistice has been reached it will be immediately made public by the government."

Have Terms

The American government was notified just before noon today that Marshal Foch had received the German delegation seeking armistice terms. The French wireless at Paris time, in announcing that the conference which may end the war had begun, the State Department disclosed that the German envoys after meeting the surrender terms handed them would be allowed a brief time to consider whether they must communicate with Berlin, and then would be given 72 hours in which to reply. The signing of an armistice, it was stated, would be the first step toward the end of the war.

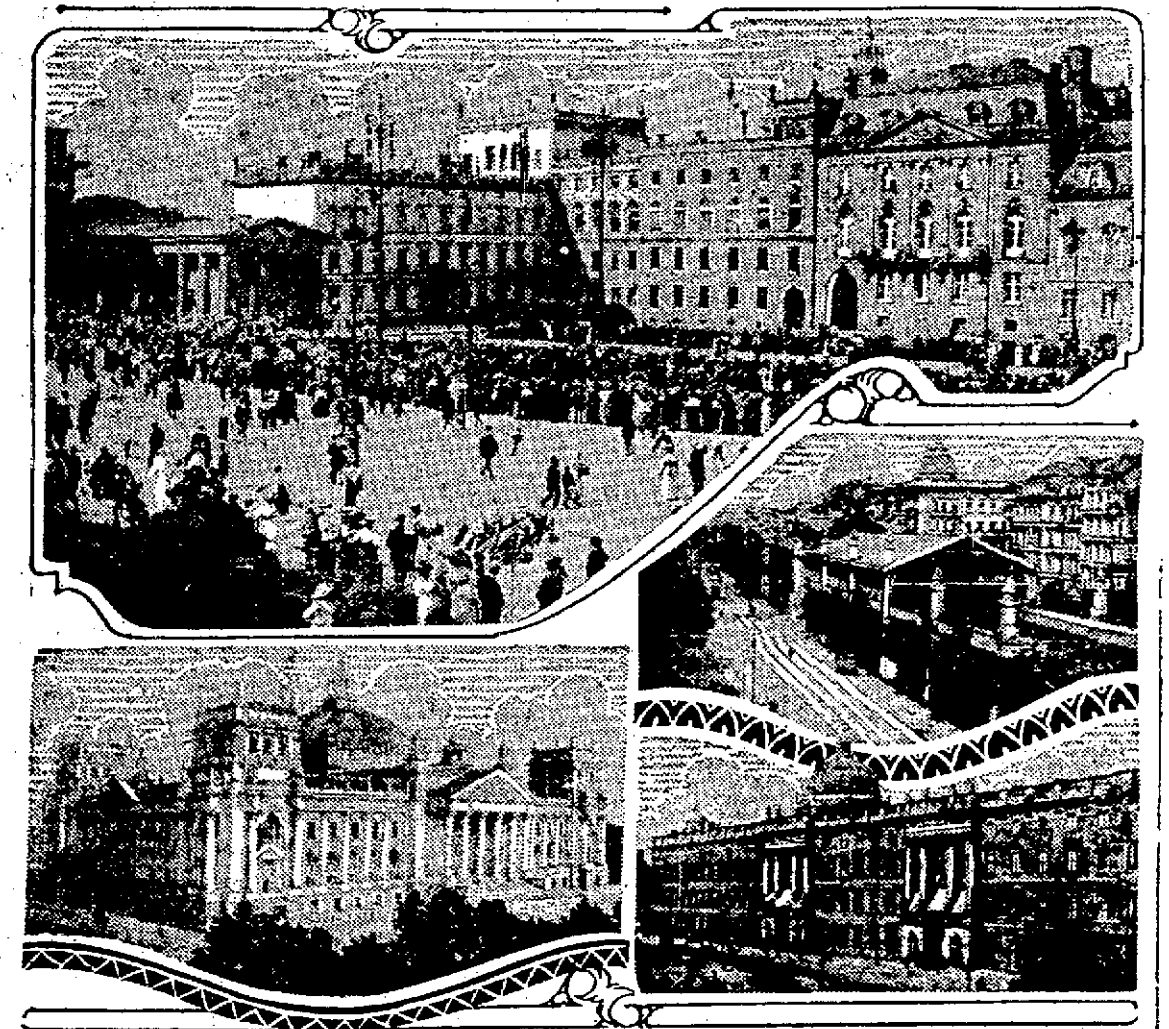

Believe End Near

Everywhere it is believed that the war cannot long be delayed. Word that the armistice conditions under which the American and allied advance may stop has been accepted, is awaited with calm confidence. But it is realized that the premature celebration in which lives already have been lost, and property destroyed may create a grave situation, resulting in the material interruption of industrial and business activities. President Wilson had taken cognizance of the danger, and at his direction, Secretary Lansing issued an official statement denying persistent statements that news was being withheld, and promising an announcement as soon as the government received the information that an armistice had been signed.

Envoys in Lines

Paris, Nov. 8.—The powers conferred upon Marshal Foch are strictly limited to the conclusion of an armistice according to the terms placed in his hands by the inter-allied council.

ARMY OF DESERTERS WITH ARMS PARADES STREETS OF BERLIN; RIOTS EXPECTED AS ABDICATION OF KAISER IS DEMANDED

View in Berlin when Germany was winning and French and Belgian trophies were hauled through the streets, above; the reichstag building, below at left; the royal palace, below at right, and the elevated railroad in Berlin street.

Dispatches from Stockholm and other points carry the word that feeling against the kaiser and his crew has reached the boiling point in Berlin and serious trouble is expected hourly. Persons arriving at the outside from Berlin tell of an army of 200,000 deserters, fully armed, marching through the streets. The executive committee of the social democratic party recently met to take action in favor of the abdication of the kaiser and planned to send an ultimatum to him to the effect that he must abdicate or the social democrats will quit the government.

HOW PEACE YARN FAKED THE NATION

New York, Nov. 8.—False reports that Germany had accepted the terms of the armistice and that fighting had ended threw the country into a delirium yesterday and turned out to be the greatest hoax of recent years.

Official assurances that the report was false failed to check the almost riotous demonstrations which swept over many American cities.

A dispatch received from France to the United Press by its own president, Roy W. Howard, and picked up and circulated through the country by another news agency declared the armistice signed at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and fighting ended at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

U. S. Troops Still Fighting
Official dispatches from France to the State Department at Washington testified that the German commission were not even to meet Marshal Foch until 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon and that fighting had ceased at two o'clock in the morning. Sedan taken on morning by American troops.

Here follows a copy of the cablegram received by the United Press at its New York office:

"United Press, New York: Paris: Armistice allies signed 11 o'clock; hostilities ceased 2 o'clock. Sedan taken morning by American troops."

(United Press is cable code address for United Press; Howard is Roy W. Howard, president of the United Press; and Simms is William Philip Simms, Paris correspondent of the United Press.)

Note Difference in Time
To grasp the situation it should be borne in mind that Paris, being to the east of the United States, is about six hours ahead of New York time. Although it had been announced that the armistice was signed at 11 o'clock and that fighting had ceased at two o'clock, it was a fact that the German commissioners were not to be received by Marshal Foch until 6 o'clock three hours after the hour reported as the end of the fighting.

The United Press officials last night continued to contend that the dispatch was true and that censorship had been clamped down to permit simultaneous announcement in all capitals.

In some quarters here the cable announcement was pronounced "the most colossal fake ever perpetrated upon the American people."

Serbian Troops Have Crossed Danube River And Are in Hungary

London, Nov. 8.—Serbian troops have crossed the Danube into Hungary, where they have been received with the greatest enthusiasm, says an official statement issued by the Serbian war office Thursday.

Asks Permission to Cross Through Hungary With Army
Basel, Switzerland, Nov. 8.—Marshal Mackensen, of the German army, has arrived at Budapest from Bucharest to confer with Premier Karolyi of Hungary on the topic of passage across their country of German divisions now in Roumania, according to a Budapest dispatch received here.

RAILROAD TELEGRAPHERS WILL BE GIVEN INCREASE

Washington, Nov. 8.—An order granting railroad telegraphers a general wage increase will be issued within a few days by Director General McAdoo, it was said today. The advance is said to average about thirty dollars a month.

Rome, Nov. 8.—Monsignor Bonaventura Cerretti, papal under secretary of state and former apostolic delegate to Austria will leave next Wednesday or Thursday for the United States as special-envoy of the Vatican.

MAY DEMAND ABDICATION OF WILHELM

GERMAN MAJORITY PARTIES IN FINAL DISCUSSION TO DEMAND KAISER'S ABDICATION IMMEDIATELY

TAKE HAMBURG PORT

Great German Maritime Port of Hamburg Completely in the Hands of the Revolutionists

London, Nov. 8.—The German majority parties have held a final discussion on the question of Emperor William's abdication, and will without doubt unanimously demand that he abdicate, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Copenhagen Politikon, forwarded by the Exchange Telegraph correspondent. The abdication, it was added, will probably occur tomorrow.

Take Maritime Port

The great maritime port of Hamburg is completely in the hands of the revolutionists, according to reports from Hamburg, printed by the Cologne Gazette. The red flag is flying on all the ships in the harbor. The headquarters of the command of the soldiers' council, after exciting occurrence in which machine guns were used. All kinds of excitement took place in the neighboring city of Altona, the port commander there agreeing to all the demands submitted to the soldiers' council.

Cut Off Railways

Copenhagen.—Revolutionists have cut the north German railway line south of Flensburg in Schleswig Holstein. This breaks communication from the north with Hamburg.

Seize Entire Navy

London.—The movement which resulted in the seizure of virtually the entire German navy by revolutionists was carried out in a fairly peaceful manner, according to the Exchange Telegraph correspondent. Copenhagen. The red flag was hoisted quite generally, he adds.

All the Large Wharves

All the large wharves connected with the naval service also were taken over by the revolutionists. At Wilhelmshaven, the naval officers agreed to hand authority over to the rebels if they would promise to make resistance should the British attack that naval port.

While General Crowder

While General Crowder would not discuss what recommendation he might take to the general staff it is understood that his advisers will vociferously withdraw from the November call. At least if the Germans accept the American and allied armistice terms before the movement to capture the port begins.

With four million men already

With four million men already under arms over seas and at home, the feeling is growing that no more will be needed, even though it may be a long time before the British and some additional men may be sent over.

In Hands of Soldiers

Copenhagen.—The court of Bremerhaven and Cuxhaven are in the hands of soldiers' councils, the Schleswig Volks Zeitung says.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Influenza continues at all large military camps and stations throughout the country, the total number of cases aggregating 18,155 for the week ending November 1, according to a review of the health conditions of the troops, made public today by Surgeon General Ireland.

The number of influenza cases

The number of influenza cases for this week is practically the same as the preceding week. The surgeon general reports that the disease is now more prevalent in the south and west than in the north and east. Pneumonia cases developing from influenza are decreasing rapidly, as is the death rate.

The total number of deaths

The total number of deaths from all diseases in all camps, cantonments and departmental troops for the week ending November 1 was 1,222, as against 2,767 for the preceding week.

is the near future. This feeling is conferred by news received from reliable headquarters that Germany's internal affairs are drafting toward chaos. Last night the people crowded around the newspaper bulletin boards until a late hour, undisturbed by the rain and the news of Sedan was flashed there was an outburst of cheers, joy and enthusiasm increased as yesterday waned. Groups sang the Marseillaise, the Sambre et Meuse and other patriotic songs. Cheers were thronged, champagne which every Frenchman promised himself long ago, sparked in glasses, the people drank to eternal France, the regained provinces, to the allies and to Premier Clemenceau and Marshal Foch.

Paris, Nov. 8.—One hundred days ago the Germans were 35 miles from Paris, today they are begging peace. After many occasions when hope was deferred and of bitter disappointment, France knows at last that triumph has come and gives rein to its unreserved joy. The conviction is universal, that whether the German delegation signs articles of capitulation or not Germany is beaten.

The allied advance, particularly the exploit of the Americans in capturing Sedan, a name which thrills every French heart shows clearly the continuation of hostilities by Germany can lead only to a military debacle in the near future. This feeling is confirmed by news received from reliable headquarters that Germany's internal affairs are drafting toward chaos.

JACOB DECEIVES HIS FATHER.

The Bible is astonishingly frank in its portrayals. Here is no veil of "goodie-goodies" and trimmings for the occasion, their blemishes hidden from the camera. The Bible is an anatomy of souls, a cross-section of human life, showing the play of passions, good and evil. This is what makes the Bible the "go-with-me" book it is, stimulus to virtue, red lantern swung across the path of sin.

Isaac's mistake was grave, and his consequences. He wanted to give the birth-right to his favorite son in spite of the Lord's revealed will that it was to go to Jacob. His was precipitate in its attempt to consummate the way he wished, thinking himself at the point of death, though in fact he lived forty years longer. Rebekah's mistake was equally painful in its character. She was precipitate in her effort to secure the birth-right for her favorite son, Jacob, in spite of the Lord's revealed will that it was to go to Jacob. ARE YOU AFRAID?
Fear is the cause of shell-shock. Not that the sufferer is a coward, but the very contrary. The victim of the active nature is keenly alive to danger and would gladly avoid it. Sense of honor and duty however leads to the suppression of fear and the unduly risk. But fear in turn, unduly, invades the imagination, causing the supposed loss of physical senses or other maladies incapacitating for service. The cure is to treat the life position infirmity. In common life, fear rises from undue self-concern. The cure is overmastering concern for others.

Mrs. Herman A. Helse

Shortly after 11 o'clock this morning the spirit of Mrs. Herman Helse passed to the Great Beyond, at her home at 1133 Vista Ave. North. About two weeks ago she was taken with an attack of Spanish influenza, thinking she was over it, she arose on the following Thursday, but suffered a relapse the same evening which developed into pneumonia.

Katherine McDonough was born July 8, 1878 near Hillsboro, Wisconsin, where she grew to womanhood. She was united in marriage to Herman A. Helse in Janesville, July 19, 1898. They began housekeeping in Evansville where they lived for about eight years, moving from there to Toledo, Ohio. In 1908 they came to Janesville and have resided here ever since. Four children were born to this union, one dying in infancy; three remain are J. Herbert, Mabel L. and Malvin Helse, whom with the bereaved husband have the sympathy of the community. Milwaukee.—That Milwaukee will have a stop over on the aerial mail route this winter is shown in the report of the civics committee, W. B. O'Connor, chairman of the Kiwanis club at the club's weekly luncheon.

Old Resident Dead.
Milwaukee.—James F. Gaffney, 78 years old, a resident of Milwaukee for many years and at one time identified with the early traction lines in the city, died at his home, 174 Twenty-second street on Wednesday. Mr. Gaffney was born in Massachusetts on July 1, 1844.

He was managing head of the old West Side Railway company, known as the Becker line, running out of Wisconsin and Twelfth streets in the days when the superintendency of maintenance and repairs, motive power and other departments were vested in one person.

Ban on Inaugural Celebration.
Milwaukee.—The re-election of Gov. E. L. Philipp and the election of the entire state ticket will not be made an occasion for parading and public ceremony in Madison.

Some day in the near future Chief Justice John B. Winslow of the Supreme court will probably call at the governor's office to administer the oath of office to the chief executive. The oath will be signed and filed with the secretary of state. The other state officers will subscribe to their oath in the same manner.

Gov. Philipp has decided that there will be no public inaugural, no band playing, no parading, just a simple filing of his oath so that the business of state will not be delayed or interfered with in these busy war times.

Edgerton News

EDGERTON WENT WILD.
OVER THE NEWS OF PEACE

Edgerton, Oct. 8.—When the peace message arrived in the city at noon yesterday the first whistle was blown and all of the bells in the city were rung. At being informed of the message citizens went wild and the streets were thronged with people who there anxious to hear the news of the signing of the armistice. A half holiday was immediately declared and all places of business were immediately closed and all Edgerton including the school children turned out to have one grand celebration. By one thirty arrangements were completed for a program to the afternoon, everyone turned out and a parade was formed the entire length of Front street. A number of artistic floats were hastily arranged, automobiles were decorated with bunting and flags and the procession headed by the Edgerton band. Both old and young turned out and by the noise it would seem that almost everyone had a tin horn or some contrivance for making a noise that would give vent to their joy. After the parade the band stand was located on Henry street near the depot and the band played patriotic and national airs. City Attorney Blanchard, F. O. Holt, Rev. Hooton and Rev. Grethlen and Rev. Atkins gave stirring addresses during the afternoon. Material for a huge bonfire was collected and it was announced that at eight o'clock in the evening the band would play. Despite the weather conditions a large crowd collected on the bank corner in the evening and the bonfire was kindled. The band played patriotic songs and the crowd led by H. M. Hammond sang American, Star Spangled Banner, Over There, Keep the Home Fires Burning, etc. F. O. Holt was called upon and gave a short talk paying high tribute to our boys over there. At ten o'clock the crowd began to disperse and were well satisfied that Edgerton had a good job well done.

Mr. and Mrs. Vickard departed for California during the week where they will spend the winter.

The prevailing damp weather has brought tobacco in fine case and the farmers are practicing through with their other farm work they will undoubtedly turn their attention to their tobacco crop. DAILY PRAYER.

Merciful Father, from Whom spring all holy impulses and desires, by Whose will we live now, grant us victory, grant a triumph of our petitions that our boys may be kept pure in heart and safe in body; or, if they must, give them a victorious entrance into eternal felicity, through the grace of Thy Son, who died that we might live. Amen.

ADVANCE INFORMATION.

Of course every citizen of the United States wishes to see this war ended. It is uppermost in their minds. Every rumor that an armistice has been signed, that peace is imminent, that the Kaiser has been assassinated, brings forth a ready response from a public that are over-taxed, mentally and financially, by war. To the woman who has a son, a husband, a brother, a cousin, in the service, such news is most welcome. Without waiting to verify if celebrations start. It is a bit premature, perhaps, but still we need lots of celebrations these days. Our boys are driving back towards the Rhine even faster than they can advance.

These American boys of ours are like their ancestors. They tie their guns over their shoulders, swim rivers, scale walls with grappling hooks and drive the Hun back. Machine guns, shrapnel, mean nothing to them. One recent letter tells of the fact that Captain Caldwell made a second trip to the hospital just to have eleven pieces of shrapnel picked out of his back with his own command when the letter was written.

But this advance information is what plays the Devil with the news. This assumption of the fact that German envoys will sign the armistice terms, and then announcing they have, hours in advance of a possibility of their having done so, questionable news policy. The Gazette receives its news from the Associated Press; other newspapers in the vicinity receive their information from various sources. In the years of experience of the largest newspapers in the United States, the Associated Press has been absolutely reliable. It has not given unsubstantiated news, rumor of news, but has dealt with facts.

The experience of the public in the premature announcement Thursday should convince them the Associated Press is absolutely reliable and can be depended upon. Both day and night the Gazette keeps in touch with the Associated Press and the latest authentic news is given with the least possible delay. Had an armistice been signed Thursday the Associated Press would have known it as quickly as anyone. It would have been imparted to the Gazette promptly and so announced to the public.

Of course we all want peace, when it comes, but we want to know absolutely it has become an accomplished fact before we start celebrating. When the authorities at Washington announce an armistice has been signed then it is time to celebrate, but not to anticipate the fact by premature rejoicings based upon absolutely unreliable "Advance Information."

THE FUTURE.

The near approach of a possible armistice with Germany—following that with the Dual Kingdom of Austria-Hungary—brings up the problem, why does the United States continue to induct men into federal service? The answer is plain. The war department at Washington could not impress upon the "powers that were" before this war started that we needed men, munitions and ships. The great slogan of "I Kept You Out of War," was too strong to overcome, and the cry of preparedness fell upon deaf ears. The United States went into this absolutely unprepared. The investigation of the aircraft mismanagement is enough to convince the unbiased citizen what was doing in Washington. Now this nation is wakened up to war, and Secretary of War Baker has actually realized that this war is not "three thousand miles away." It is no wonder the war department insists upon its being given power to maintain its army up to the standard that will be necessary for some time to come, no matter upon what terms peace is actually signed up for the United States is bound to act as the policeman of Europe for some time to come. The American troops now seeing service over there will be returned home, but the new troops will be needed to take their places in France, Germany, Belgium, perhaps in Serbia and Rumania, and Austria and Hungary, and most certainly in Russia, to insure the preservation of peace and the observation of the peace terms. We may have a cessation of fighting at any time now, but our American troops will be in Europe for many months to come. Peace can not come too quickly, but one really would wish it could be accomplished when a detail of American cavalry dashed up the "Unter den Linden" in Berlin, just as the Uhlans did in Paris in 1870, and not on the foreign soil they had invaded.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

Many people who admit the value of technical instruction and training in hand work, say that it is not practical to introduce it. They feel the school courses are so crowded with subjects that there is no time to take on new branches. Also the expense would be too great. Yet if we can turn out a body of young men who by reason of higher standards of mechanical work and skill, can turn out a larger product in our factories, it is very poor policy to deny them the equipment and the special teachers they need. The great trouble with our mechanical production is that the mass of the work people are satisfied with very ordinary and mediocre grades of work. The man who can be spurred on to think about his work, to study the materials he handles, to learn the materials and to learn never to be satisfied until he has turned out a perfect product in a minimum of time and effort, that man is going to turn out a product twice as valuable as the average mechanic. If our factories can be filled with that kind of mechanic, their production will be doubled in value.

Ideas of this kind are best imparted in schools, when people are young, and their life habits are more easily formed.

This kind of work needs of course instruction from competent technical teachers, who have ideals of craftsmanship, and can teach boys how to acquire a high range of mechanical skill.

But it need not be so expensive as some people think. One teacher in the manual and mechanical arts can cover a considerable group of schools, and a single set of equipment can be used for boys from a large number of schools. In country districts one such teacher could supervise manual training for the schools of a number of towns.

The question is asked what has become of the spellbinders that used to tear through the country in automobiles asking little knots of people to vote for them. Well, last heard from they had saved the same money and bought ten times as many people, by paying the newspapers to print what they had to say.

Someone wants to know what should be done with dealers who raised prices of fruit when the same was prescribed for influenza patients? Well, no one has asked the doctors to make any extra speed in answering their calls when they got sick.

As it will take fifty-one days for the present United States army to pass a given point, the people who always attend parades will have to lay in a large number of ham sandwiches for the day when the boys come home.

More delay announced on anti-trust cases before the supreme court. A bold, sanguine, and confident man expressed the opinion the other day that his grandchildren would get lower prices as the result of anti-trust legislation.

The people who wonder why every sewing meeting is not reported in the newspapers, might be reminded that 600 newspaper men are busy training in one army camp alone for their prospective interview with the Kaiser.

The National Press club entertainment last night urges its members to "Can their dress suits until the Kaiser is canned." It is to be feared that some of these fellows are turning from newspaper men into journalists.

Also a friend asks what treatment should be given people who grow on the sugar ration. Well, there would be no popular protest if the dealers happened always to be out when they apply for theirs.

The more we hear about these futile attempts on the life of Lenin and Trotsky, the more we understand the deplorable results of failure to teach marksmanship.

No, Mr. Kaiser Bill, Uncle Sam may look like a Reuben, but he has been to town once or twice, and he knows those slick looking fellows that always walk up and inquire for the home folks.

While the farmer is quietly reading in his house of the activities of the Hun spies one thousand miles away, the Kaiserites may be creeping up behind his own grain stack with a torch.

Although this giving up of the study of German is all right, enough people have got to know the language to keep watch of what the infernal cusses are trying to put over next.

It is hoped that next time an epidemic starts, someone will know the difference between a common cold and a disease that carries off 20,000 soldiers and 100,000 civilians.

American farmers report twice as many legs as there were a year ago. Also you see large number when you get out on the crowded motor roads.

If the small boys were required to celebrate Halloween by ringing all the door bells on the street, they would feel they were awfully abused.

The man who forgets to vote is usually the same one who howls the loudest when public officials forget to protect his interest in every detail.

The Germans deny that they shell life boats, as the guns went off by accident and happened to point themselves where the life boats were.

A Towanda, Pa., man choked to death while eating meat pie. That is a danger to which many of us are not subject at present prices.

Will some one who think advertising doesn't pay, please explain why it is that the biggest businesses are always the best advertisers?

A noted clergyman says kissing is a relic of the dark ages. Anyway it is apt to take place in the dark.

DEMAND FOR LABOR CONTINUES UNABATED

The requirements for unskilled labor are so great and so immediate that the United States Employment Service in every state will be taxed to the utmost to meet them. The Council of National Defense, alive to the emergency, has instructed all the State and County Defense Councils to get behind the Employment Service in meeting this problem. The demands for 370,000 common laborers must be met. They can only be met by co-operation and sacrifice.

Co-operation with the Employment Service in all its policies, regulations and demands from employers and workers whether engaged in war or non-war work. There must be no more of the selfish, thoroughly demoralizing policy of grasping unneeded labor now being attempted by a few employers, to the nation's detriment.

Sacrifice is the second essential. In many cases, ungrudging co-operation with the Employment Service will itself spell "sacrifice" to both employers and workers, but whole-hearted assistance to meet the spirit rather than the letter of the government regulations is required in the entire northwest. At Racine, the Du Pont Engineering company, agents of the War Department of the U. S. Government have estimated their needs at the plant for which they are breaking ground, up to January 1, 1919 to be 10,815.

The local office of the Employment Service is requested to furnish a certain quota of men weekly for this plant. The labor requirements include laborers, carpenters, pipe-fitters, electricians, millwrights, tinmiths, blacksmiths, machinists, lead burners, brick-layers, hod-carriers, mortar mixers, cooks, waiters, janitors, hoisting engineers, riggers, and chauffeurs. The Department of Labor through the U. S. Employment Service has sent in instructions that an immediate campaign be started to secure competent stenographers, typists, secretarial and filing clerk for government service at Washington and elsewhere for essential industries.

Any one desiring any information regarding any of the above positions can apply at the U. S. Employment Service, 122 E. Milwaukee street, Janesville.

Signified Honorary Promotion.
 Brevet is a French word, meaning commission or warrant. In military usage it gives an officer higher nominal rank than the one for which he receives pay. It is an honorary promotion. The first time it was used in the United States army was in 1812, when Capt. Zachary Taylor, who afterward became president, was made major by brevet for his brave defense of Fort Harrison against the Indians, near Terre Haute.

Systematic Effort Wins.
 If we take our days and reduce them to the essentials we shall find that there are many real things to do, needful things to do, and we shall go about these tasks quietly and earnestly, not expressing our energies through a hundred trifles, but through true effort, properly directed, doing whatever our hands and hearts and minds find to do, nobly and well.

Still They Will Happen.
 Mistakes will happen, but the difference between a good man and a poor one is that the good man is always on guard.—Detroit Free Press.

BOOK OF A THOUSAND SONGS BRIGHTENS HOME

Just the Thing for Sunday Evening Family Gathering Around Piano.

HYMN FAVORITES IN IT

It is Sunday evening. The family is all gathered in the cozy living room, where the shades are drawn and the lamps lighted. At the piano is a girl who fingers are drawn listlessly over the keys as if searching for a song to harmonize with the surroundings. A man in a smoking jacket interrupts her musing. "Daughter, play some old hymns, can't you?" he asks. She drifts from the musical reverie into "Abide With Me." She plays "Softly Now the Light of Day" and follows this with "Rescue Me from the Wicked." Ere long the family is singing. They join in "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," their voices blend in "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," some one suggests "Syn of My Soul," and they sing it. They will find all these old favorite hymns, in addition to nearly 100 others, in The Book of a Thousand Songs, which this paper is distributing. If you enjoy Sunday evenings, or Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday evenings around the piano, you should have one of these books. A coupon printed in another column of this paper, explains how to obtain it at a nominal price.

Prince Maximilian.

The Kaiser has named Prince Maximilian, prospective Grand Duke of Baden, to succeed Count Von Hertling as imperial chancellor. He is known as the "peace prince." Not long ago he shocked Germany by a near pacifist announcement urging "reconciliation" with the allies, especially with America and England. He has urged peace by understanding and conciliation. "No conquests" is one of his principles.

MYERS THEATRE

While "Over There" offers some thrilling scenes, and some that are terribly realistic, yet there is a fascinating love story running through it, and out of all the tragic circumstances, happiness at last is found by nearly all the characters in the huge war drama. It is a play concerning war and war times, and yet is not morbid. It is filled with excitement and with thrills, and yet there are moments of light comedy and of tender sentiment to relieve the tension. It is a play of the day and time, and has been proclaimed one of the best war plays seen in Chicago, where it had run at the Princess and the Auditorium. "Over There" will be presented at Myers' theater tonight.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOUTON

Across business this morning and I had to go to the fashionable inn to break my fast. There on the table I noticed two strange objects of small dimensions. I questioned the waiter as to what they might be, for never in my life had I seen their like before.

"They are the rolls," he said to me.

So I took one and tried to force it open, with no more success than I try to break a nut with my fingers. I do believe nobody has ever succeeded in breaking that roll. I asked the waiter, and he said it was so many, but I tried and failed. It was the most astounding substance ever I saw.

So I placed the roll in the pocket of my suit and did fetch it home with me, where I cut it with a steel knife, tore a hole in it large enough for the insertion of a handle, and shall then have a very suitable hammer for all purposes of my household.

A man was arrested for using indecent language in one of our street cars the other day, but the judge released him on suspended sentence because he proved that he was talking about the Kaiser at the time.

A Wall street man of our acquaintance has a unique plan to rid himself of time-wasting callers. He is old-fashioned and has no "secretary."

He has a bell on his office door and when it rings he gets up and puts on his hat and gloves and picks up his cane. If the visitor proves to be some one he doesn't want to see, he says, "I'm sorry, I am just going out."

If the caller is one he wishes to visit with he says, "So fortunate, I have just come in."

And still people say there is no diplomacy on Wall street.

The clash of the hand was already fainter. The chausseurs rode now in silence, and once more the dull monotonous tread predominated, strangely, persistently ominous. "You know where Farquhar is?" Preston said imperatively. "You know what has become of him?"

"Perhaps—I am not sure."

"If you know remove you must wish to atone," Preston said hoarsely.

"A second, at the end of his day's work, has much to atone for," was the abstracted answer. "I have chosen my atonement, Mr. Preston. All atonement is inadequate, but mine shall be made—for my greatest wrong, at whatever cost—" He broke off. "The Legion," he said quietly.

Preston did not speak, silenced against his will by the scene beneath him. The dancers from the hotel had

There is only one way to remove pimples, blackheads, eruptions and eczema with its rash and itch, and that is by Stuart's Calcium Wafers in the skin.

Their wonderful calcium sulfate supplies the blood with one of the most remarkable actions known to science. This is its activity in keeping firm the tiny fibres that compose even such tiny muscles as those which control the slightest change of expression, such as the eyelids, lips, and so on. It is this substance which pervades the entire skin, keeps it healthy and drives away impurities. Dizziness Causes Fall — Head Injured

"A year ago my stomach bloated so badly with gas that I felt unconscious and cut my head badly on corner of door. I had suffered from stomach trouble for several years and no medicine helped me to speak of. A druggist patched up my head and advised me to use Mayr's Wonderful remedy for my stomach trouble. The results have been really wonderful. I have never had any sign of my former symptoms since." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the natural mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. J. P. Baker, Druggist.

swarmed up to the long lines of hanging lanterns at the edge of the garden. A clown climbed upon the stone gatepost and was beating wildly, hilariously on the heads of the crowd with his bladder, shouting a witticism at each laughing victim. But beyond a thin dark stream flowed from the darkness into the light and from light back into darkness. They were grotesque figures—hideous, pitiable. Those also were figures of carnival—but different. They marched four deep—a hundred of them. Their heads were bowed. Beneath the flare of lights each man seemed to shrink, to cower closer to his neighbor, like a herded terrified animal. And many stumbled. Preston's hands tightened on the rails in front of him.

"Poor devils."

A few yards behind the last line a spahi rode alone. A short rope was attached to his saddle—and to a man who stumbled at his horse's heels. The rope was round his neck, his hands were bound behind him, and the broken link of a chain clanked in the sudden stricken stillness. His kept had been knocked off, and every line in that gaunt quiet face was visible. As though blinded by the sudden light, he reeled and was jerked brutally to his knees. A woman laughed hysterically. Instantly he had recovered. And in that recovery, that quiet acceptance of a crowning humiliation there was a dignity, a courage that held the crowd a moment longer in a awestruck silence.

"God in heaven—Farquhar!"

Low stepped.

"You know now," he said. "You know that your atonement has come too late."

The tragic figure passed on: an officer on horseback rode into the light, and the crowd stirred in restless relief. But above that sudden wave of movement, above the clown's half-ashamed burst of reconquered merriment there sounded a cry—a muffled wall of incredulous agony. The officer turned in his saddle. Sylvia Arnaud, in the front row of the masques, waved to him. He did not look at her, and she glanced impatiently at the boy-Mephistopheles beside her.

"What was that? Didn't you hear?" He laughed.

"Someone fainting. That queer old fury with the white wig, I believe. You're not frightened?"

"Oh, no—no!"

"Of course not. One gets accustomed to that sort of thing here, does one not? A runaway legionary! Who cares?" He offered her his arm with an elaborate bow. "May we not go on dancing, Carmen?"

CHAPTER XIX.

The Last Offer.

The long low-bellied room was full of sunshine. It poured in through the half-opened shutters and danced on the whitewashed walls and on the long deal table with its litter of maps and documents. The doors at the far end were thrown open, and two soldiers with fixed bayonets took up their posts on either hand. A few minutes later a group of officers followed. They were six in number—two lieutenants, three captains and a major. They belonged to the same regiment. They exchanged desultory remarks, and from time to time one or another of them laughed. Only Desire Arnaud was silent.

A moment later the sentries presented arms and Colonel Destinn entered. All six men sprang to their feet. There was more than formal military courtesy in that simultaneous movement. Their eyes were fixed on his face as on some feared and incalculable oracle.

"Pray be seated, gentlemen."

He took his place in the midst of them beneath the two tricolors draped perfunctorily over a miniature and emblematic bust of the republic. "Bring in the prisoner," he said sharply.

The sentries repeated the order, and in the brief interval that followed the six men relaxed into their former attitude of languid indifference. The two younger officers exchanged whispered comments, and one of them laughed.

The door opened and a sergeant entered, followed by two corporals and a man whose hands and feet were chained. There was a short silence. The sergeant made an authoritative gesture, and the man was thrust forward and the door closed again, shutting out the brief glimpse of sunlight courtyard.

"The prisoner's number?"

The sergeant drew out a bulky document from between the buttons of his tunic.

"No. 4005, called Richard Nameless of the First regiment, the Eleventh company."

"The accusation?"

"Conspiracy and mutiny on the field."

"Any previous record?"

"No, my colonel, but marked as a dangerous character."

"Very well, sergeant. You can stand back."

The man saluted and retired a few paces, leaving his prisoner alone, facing the table. Colonel Destinn looked up. As their eyes met the prisoner bowed, gravely, without bravado, with an instinctive courtesy which became him strangely well. Colonel Destinn's outstretched hands were clenched, and the knuckles stood out white and polished as marble. There was no trace of emotion on the implacable features; and his voice sounded formal and indifferent.

"In the ordinary course of events this case would go to the court at Orono," he said. "But I have received instructions from General Meunier to deal with all such offenses summarily. There have been signs of unrest in the Legion. General Meunier demands that an example should be made."

The major nodded.

"It's essential to discipline," he murmured vaguely.

"Legionary, you are charged on your own confession. Do you still insist turned the old torpor, touched with the petulant irritation of exhausted nerves that have been too highly strung. Colonel Destinn picked up his kept and, without greeting, strode out of the courtyard. The rest followed. But as they reached the door they hesitated. Someone had laughed. It was no usual sound; in the heavy stillness it rang shrill and unnatural. They turned and saw that Desire Arnaud had not moved. He sat at the table with his hands spread out before him and laughed.

The major shrugged his shoulders.

"I have seen it coming," he said regretfully. "I have seen it coming a long time. Ah, this terrible country—this terrible, beautiful country! It is pitiable—and his poor wife! Well, I shall give our friend, the doctor, a hint. He will know better."

He too went out, but the laughter followed him. It drifted out on to the courtyard, and rose with the stifling waves of heat to the windows of the whitewashed room where Colonel Destinn sat with his forehead pressed against his clenched hands, listening. It stopped at last, abruptly, tragically, and Destinn lifted his head as though released from a hypnotic trance. A little group of men in white drill uniforms were crossing the courtyard. They were carrying something between them—something that fought and struggled.

"Tomorrow You May Have No Son."

that you were the sole instigator and leader of the mutiny?"

"Yes, my colonel."

"You have no statement to make, no explanation to offer?"

"None."

Colonel Destinn leaned forward on his elbow. And suddenly it seemed to the man beside him that he had ceased to interrogate—that he was pleading with a smothered passionate energy.

"Captain Arnaud, you were with me. You were the sole survivor of my staff. Have you anything to say for this man?"

There was a brief silence. It seemed as though Arnaud had not heard. He was still staring in front of him, and a full minute passed before he lifted his eyes slowly, reluctantly to Destinn's face.

"I?" And then suddenly he half arose, his hands gripping the edge of the table. "—I—have—"

He stopped. His blank gaze had passed on. It rested on the prisoner's gaunt untroubled features and lit up with a flame of awakened recollection. He relapsed. "No, I have nothing to say," he said slowly and distinctly.

It seemed that the heat became denser, more stifling. There was no sound but the soft maddening buzz of the flies in the circle of sunshine. Colonel Destinn drew himself up stiffly.

"Then I have no option but to pass the highest sentence on you, Legionary," he said. "There is only one mitigation which lies in my power. I know that you are a brave man—you shall die as one. You will be shot—unbound—at daybreak—by your comrades."

"I thank you, Colonel Destinn."

The major looked up shyly. Throughout he had been conscious of something unseen passing between these two men; he saw now that they gazed at each other unflinchingly with that intensity which seeks below the surface for the inextinguishable.

The sergeant came forward and touched the condemned man on the shoulder. He turned at once with a little whimsical shrug of apology, bowed ceremoniously to the whole court, and to his own horror the major realized that he had returned the salute. He glanced anxiously around him, and recognized on the faces of his companions the same uncertainty and bewilderment. Destinn looked at no one.

Richard Nameless was led out into the sunshine. With his passing the spirit of tension passed also; there returned the old torpor, touched with the petulant irritation of exhausted nerves that have been too highly strung. Colonel Destinn picked up his kept and, without greeting, strode out of the courtyard. The rest followed. But as they reached the door they hesitated. Someone had laughed. It was no usual sound; in the heavy stillness it rang shrill and unnatural. They turned and saw that Desire Arnaud had not moved. He sat at the table with his hands spread out before him and laughed.

The major shrugged his shoulders.

"I have seen it coming," he said regretfully. "I have seen it coming a long time. Ah, this terrible country—this terrible, beautiful country! It is pitiable—and his poor wife! Well, I shall give our friend, the doctor, a hint. He will know better."

He too went out, but the laughter followed him. It drifted out on to the courtyard, and rose with the stifling waves of heat to the windows of the whitewashed room where Colonel Destinn sat with his forehead pressed against his clenched hands, listening. It stopped at last, abruptly, tragically, and Destinn lifted his head as though released from a hypnotic trance. A little group of men in white drill uniforms were crossing the courtyard. They were carrying something between them—something that fought and struggled.

Colonel Destinn's eyes were fixed on the broad red line which ran from north to south, past carefully marked towns and villages, through white spaces of open plain, skirting broad waterways and low-ridged mountains, to the immense yellow bank where it ended abruptly, like some proud thought that had come to nothing. Colonel Destinn bent lower, his brows contracted in impatient bitterness. With a red pencil he struck off an inch of the great line and marked it with a cross. The place of the seven hundred dead.

The door opened again. He did not hear it. His knuckles were pressed against his forehead, as though crushing back an intolerable recollection. Only as he was addressed by name he started and glanced back over his shoulder.

"I must apologize, Colonel Destinn. I ventured to come in unannounced. The sentry appears to regard me as one of the family with the right to come and go as I please."

The bandit suddenly appeared as many of the passengers on a western train were preparing to retire for the night.

"Come, shell out!" he demanded.

The minister looked at him sadly for a moment, then said:

"If I had such energetic fellows as you to pass the plate now and then I might have something to give you."

"Shame has driven many a man into the ranks," declares Lord Northcliffe, "and in this regard we have to thank the women of the nation for turning many a would-be slacker into an excellent soldier. Sometimes, however, they are over-zealous or make mistakes. A case of this sort happened recently on a London bus."

"A young man offered a lady his seat. Imagine his surprise when she drew herself up haughtily and exclaimed, 'I don't accept favors from slackers.'"

"But he was not taken aback. Instead he regarded the lady critically and then replied:

"'Madam, I was all through Gallipoli, and if we had had as much powder down there as you have on your nose, results would have been different.'"

"Mullens looked at his partner sharply when he arrived at the office. 'Man alive!' he said, anxiously. 'You look rotten. What's up?' 'I feel rotten,' said Collins, wearily. FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Nov. 8, 1878.—Last evening Willie Corning, a ten-year-old son of Josh Corning was run over by a horse and buggy on Main street. The wheels passed over his legs and chest, injuring his somewhat but not seriously. The driver of the rig is unknown.

The Janesville Veterans feel they are entitled to the assistance of the community as well as the Guards. They will soon circulate a subscription paper for the purpose of raising a fund to purchase uniforms. The suits will be like the dress uniform of the United States infantry.

Last evening a team belonging to H. E. Patterson took a run up West Milwaukee street. In front of Conant's grocery store the team ran into a wagon, tipped over the buggy to which they were attached and were then stopped.

A letter was received from Adjutant General Bryant today asking Captains Baker and Croft whether the Veterans and Guards will be ready for inspection soon, and requesting them to fix a date when he can come here. Next Tuesday night was named.

Last month the cotton factory manufactured more cloth than in any other month since its spindles were set whirling. The total number of yards made in October reached the large amount of 480,870. Those who are posted on the matter affirm this is a larger amount than any mill in the country can show. The figures are mammoth ones and show that the factory is being run hard so as to gain the largest possible production. Janesville can feel proud of the enterprise.

Beet-Sugar Production.

In 1747 a Berlin chemist discovered that sugar could be obtained from beets, and since then the percentage of sugar has been increased so considerably by selective breeding of the vegetables that nowadays a ton of it is derived from nine tons of the roots. The average person in this country consumes two-thirds of his own weight of sugar in a year.

DRUGGISTS STILL ASKED TO CONSERVE STOCKS ON VAPORUB NEEDED IN "FLU" DISTRICTS

Influenza Epidemic is Decreasing in Most Sections and The Demand is Slackening But We Are Still 18,000 Gross Behind On Orders and It Will Take Some Time To Catch up.

THREE MILLION JARS SHIPPED DURING OCTOBER

On Monday, October 21, we addressed an advertisement to the wholesale and retail drug trade, advising that we were badly overstocked due to the influenza epidemic, stating that all deals and quantity shipments were postponed, and requesting that VapoRub be purchased in small lots only. This condition still prevails.

At this writing we have back orders for eighteen thousand (18,000) gross and our orders each day are double our daily output. The epidemic, however, is decreasing in most sections, the demand is slackening and we are working night and day to catch up. In the meantime, we ask the trade to be patient with us.

ENORMOUS SHIPMENTS HAVE WIPE OUT EXCESS STOCKS.

On October 1st we had on hand at the factory and in twenty warehouses over the country a tremendous stock of VapoRub, accumulated during the summer months. This is now gone—we actually shipped during the month of October over three million jars of VapoRub. We are speeding up our factory as much as possible and the problem now is to distribute the factory's output as quickly as possible. We have, therefore, for the time being, abandoned freight shipments and are shipping either by parcel post or express—trying to give each jobber at least a little stock.

IMMEDIATE SHIPMENTS TO DRUGGISTS IN INFLUENZA DISTRICTS.

Preference is being given to those sections stricken by influenza. In order to reach these sections as quickly as can be, we are, during this emergency, making shipments by parcel post, direct, to the retail trade, of not more than three (3) dozen 30c size in any one shipment. We prefer that the jobbers order these shipments for their trade, but to save time we will, if the need is urgent, ship direct on receipt of check or money order. Naturally, no new accounts can be opened during this rush.

SAMPLES AND INFLUENZA BOOKLETS FREE ON REQUEST.

We have prepared a little folder giving all the information available so far on Spanish influenza—its origin—the symptoms and the treatment, and these will be forwarded to druggists on request. We will also be glad to

KEEP FREE FROM COLDS BY INHALING VAPORUB.

Colds irritate the lining of the air passages and thus render them a much better breeding place for the germs. At the first signs of a cold use VapoRub at once. Melt a little in a spoon and inhale the vapors arising, or VapoRub can be used in a regular benzoin steam kettle, such as most druggists carry in stock. If this is not available, a very good substitute to use is an ordinary tea-kettle. Fill half-full of boiling water—put in half a teaspoon of VapoRub from time to time—keep the kettle just slowly boiling and inhale the steam arising.

Tales of the Friendly Forest

"Ha, ha!" shouted Old Man Weasel again, as he ran toward the two little rabbits, who I told you in the last story had run the Lucynowbie right into a great big steel trap.

"Oh dear me! Now we're losers!" said the old gentleman rabbit, and he wiped his eyes with his blue silk pocket handkerchief.

adot handkerchief and thought how dreadful it would be, after he was dead and gone, to have Old Man Weasel wear his old wedding stove-pipe hat.

"Take hold of the Buffalo Robe," whispered Billy Bunny, "and help me drop it over Old Man Weasel when he gets close enough to the Lucky-Mobile." Well, this sort of cheered up the old gentleman rabbit, and when the wicked weasel was just going to get inside the two little rabbits dropped the big Buffalo Robe right on top of him, and then Billy Bunny, quicker than a wink, drove wooden pegs in the four corners of the robe so that the wicked weasel couldn't even squeeze out.

"Ah, ha, ha, ha!" said Billy Bunny, and he poked the lumpy part of the Buffalo Robe with the end of his pug-nose, for the lumpy part was Old Man Weasel, you see. And every time Old Man Weasel crawled to another place, Billy Bunny poked him a little harder, so after a while the wicked weasel kept perfectly still.

And then Uncle Lucky got out the monkey wrench and the screw driver and by and by he had managed to get the lucky-mobile out of the steel trap.

"I hate to leave that nice Buffalo Robe," said the old gentleman rabbit, "but what can we do?"

"S-sh!" whispered the little rabbit, and then he took a long rope and tied one end to the Buffalo Robe and then he tied the other end to the Lucky-Mobile, and by and by he had managed to get in and rode off, and after they had gone maybe a mile or a little less, the robe tightened up and gave a terrible jerk, and the Lucky-Mobile almost stopped, and then it plunged forward again.

So Billy Bunny pulled the robe in as fast as he could while the Lucky-Mobile kept on going and after two hours and forty-five minutes nine hundred and sixty-seven seconds he came to the end, which wasted to the Buffalo Robe, which was pretty dirty by the time, into the Lucky-Mobile.

"Well, I guess that was the only thing to do," said Uncle Lucky, "but it's too bad that Old Man Weasel is free again, for he's no telling when he'll use us into another scrape."

"Don't worry, Uncle Lucky," said Billy Bunny, "and don't go to the bridge unless you want to cross it, and pretty soon after that they came to the Old Brier Patch, where Mrs. Bunny had a nice carrot stew steaming hot and lettuce salad and baked lollypops and lots more niceness which haven't room to mention in this story."

WHOS WHO in the Day's News

GOV. JAMES M. COX.

Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio is running for re-election of the Democratic ticket. Frank B. Willis is the Republican candidate. It is their contest for the chair.

Cox was born in Jacksonburg, Butler county, March 31, 1870, so that he will be forty-nine next March. Son of a farmer, his early education was in the rural schools, supplemented by a high school course at Middletown.

After leaving the farm he was a printer, school teacher and newspaper reporter. He was official secretary of the Ohio State Teachers' Association, and in 1913 he was elected to the Ohio House of Representatives.

He began his active leadership in state politics when elected to congress by the Third district in 1908. He was re-elected in 1910. Renominated in 1912, he resigned when nominated for governor. He was elected, becoming forty-sixth governor of Ohio. He was defeated by Willis in 1914, only to emerge and defeat Willis in turn in 1916.

He and Mrs. Cox occupy a beautiful home, "Trail's End," at Dayton. He has a daughter, Mrs. Helen Cox Mahoney, twenty-two and a son, James, sixteen.

The Daily Novelette

FOR THE SIMPLE REASON

Dr. P. Fishent, Pittsburgh's most famous physician, was pouring over Quack's "Thousand Ways of Curing Hobbies" and had mastered seven of the terms in the 167th way, when he was greeted warily by his bosom friend Cholly Chump who was after free advice.

"Doc," he said, "I have come on a very serious errand. I am getting bald and I want to know the reason. It's the plague of my life. Why, after while the baby won't have anything to catch hold of when she's mad and I'll be getting the Spanish influenza going out with my naked head. What do you think is the reason?" And he bent over to hide his tears while the doctor took out his double-lensed X-ray.

Then he pried open Cholly's mouth with a knife and looked up at the root of his mouth.

"I don't see anything," said the doctor, knowingly. "The roots do not seem to be affected. At first I thought it was Mothbite at the roots but I don't see any. And the doctor put back the powerful glass in his pocket."

Just then, Cholly leaned over again, this time to hide his disappointment.

"Why, Cholly!" exclaimed Dr. P. Fishent, delightedly. "Do you want to know why you are getting bald?" he asked, eagerly.

"Yes, I think that's what I came for. I don't know, but—"

"Why your hair is falling out; that's why," said the Doctor, triumphantly. "For the first time in twenty years Cholly Chump placed a fee on Dr. P. Fishent's desk."

NEBRASKA UNIVERSITY HAVE STRONG ELEVEN

(By Associated Press.)
Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 8.—The University of Nebraska football management is anxious for an attractive Thanksgiving Day engagement, the contest to be played in Lincoln.
Prof. R. B. Scott, athletic manager, is considering whether to schedule the Northwestern team, scheduled for Nov. 23, to Turkey Day, Northwestern was promised a game $4,000 guaranteed for the Nov. 23 tie when the game was contracted for, but recently efforts were made to induce the Evanston management to cut that figure nearly in half on account of the very poor financial opening of the season. However, the original guarantee will stand, according to Prof. Scott, if transfer to the holiday can be arranged.
If Northwestern accepts the Thanksgiving proposal, it is probable an invitation will be extended to the soldiers (team of Camp Funston) to meet Nebraska on the local field, Nov. 23. This arrangement would give the Cornhuskers the following schedule:
Nov. 9—Missouri at Columbia.
Nov. 16—Kansas at Lincoln.
Nov. 23—Evanston at Lincoln.
Northwestern now looms up as a big number on such a prospective program. By holding the powerful Great Lakes machine to soreless tie, the Evanston aggregation has added appreciably to its prestige.

GREAT LAKES PLAYER SIGNS FOR BIG LEAGUE

Great Lakes, Ill., Nov. 8.—Joe Doyle, the "Babe Ruth" of Great Lakes has signed a big league contract. Doyle is a St. Louis amateur who played third base for the First Regiment, one of the strongest clubs on the station. He broke into the limelight by flogging home runs over the fence. Doyle built a mound that might be compared to a lift over the left fence of any major league park.
Not only did Doyle lead the league in hitting, but some of his slugging records are remarkable for an amateur. He scattered a dozen home runs and nine triples.
He is signed with the St. Louis Cardinals, the contract calling for his service after he is mustered out of the navy. A special contract for him was drawn by the national commission and forwarded to St. Louis.
Doyle is 21 years old, hits and throws right handed and uses his head.

TWO MORE TIGERS ENLIST FOR SERVICE

(By Associated Press.)
Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—Two more former diamond stars of the Detroit Americans league club are about to go into war work either on the firing line or warfare work behind the trench.
Jim ("Doc") McGuire, who was connected with the local, once as a catcher and later as coach and scout, is understood to have been waiting a call from the Knights of Columbus for service overseas. McGuire is well beyond the draft age, and consequently ineligible for active fighting service. The desire to take some part in the world war, however, is keen in his heart, according to his friends here, and he has taken the first opportunity to get into the service.
"Wild Bill" Donovan, for years pitching idol of Detroit fans, and last season assistant to Hugh Jennings, is the other Detroit star slated for overseas service. He was at first understood Donovan would also become connected with the Knights of Columbus overseas organization, but more recently it is reported he had succeeded in enlisting in the navy. No direct word has been received from Donovan himself, however.
Jennings and Bill Coughlin, another former Tiger player, already have joined forces with the Knights of Columbus.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION HAVE ELECTED OFFICERS

All students belonging to the Athletic Association of the Janesville high school met yesterday and elected officers to represent them during the school year. Thomas Nuzum was chosen president, Miriam Decker vice president and Austin Sprackling secretary and treasurer.
The usual custom of electing three members from each class to serve on the board was carried out as usual. The results of the elections for the classes follows: Seniors, Herbert Allen, Margaret Austin and Robert Ray; Juniors, Joseph Beckerman, Jean McNamara and John Drew; Sophomores, Chadwick Newman, George Burbee and Clementine Smith; Freshmen, John Austin, Ruth Francis and Kenneth Buck. A cheer leader for the school will be elected at the next meeting of the Association.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAYS WALWORTH SATURDAY

After being badly defeated once by the strong Walworth team, the high school football team will go to Walworth this afternoon where they will tackle the Walworth team. Although they were beaten by a large score in the first game, hopes are entertained that the boys will come back victors. A number from the school plan to attend the game.

MORRIS MILLER

Looking over the list of champion trapshooters and their records we have this facetious thought: When the war is over why not stand the Kaiser, his six cowardly sons, Ludy, Hinda and a few others up in all the medal-bedecked splendor before this group of gunners? Then let the sharpshooters shoot off all the tin, powder and leather medals, the gold lace, the other ornaments and then, with a single volley nip off the suspenders, buttons and give the whole bunch of Hun bums thirty seconds to get off the earth.

Of course, it might miss up the outdoors but especially if one of the boys behind the guns got nervous, but no one would mind that.

Two wonderful trapshooters are Homer Clark of Alton, Ill., and Frank M. Troch of Vancouver, Wash. Clark is the professional trap-shooting champion. He won the title this year, also last year, and the year before that he lost the title by one target in a shootoff. In 1916 Clark led the trapshooters of the United States with an average of 98 per cent on 200 targets—the highest average ever made by a trap-shooter.

Troch is the national amateur champion at double targets. He is also the state champion trapshooter of Washington. In 1916, besides holding the championship of Washington, he was national amateur champion at single targets. Last year Troch compiled a run of 294, the highest run of the year, either amateur or professional.

Minnesota has a second Artie Muck, He is Douglas (Babe) Roos, the heaviest football candidate who has reported to Dr. Williams Inc. (ten years). Only nineteen years old, the big fellow tips the scales at exactly 320 pounds.

Yes, and weight does not interfere with his football playing. Big as he is, Roos has shown up so well that he probably will be a regular in his first year on the squad. Roos played football for four years in high school. He is a guard and center, and a good one, at that. Although he is a bit clumsy and awkward on the Minnesota shift, he's proving to be such a reliable man that Dr. Williams has been using him regularly on the first team.

Jim Gilmore, former president of the Federal League, is to drive a truck in France. If Jim drives the same into the central powers that he threw into the major league magnates in their baseball war, the Kaiser will quit cold by Christmas. Mr. Gilmore has done right to get into the motor transport service. He will never run short of gas, if his past performances mean anything.

Mess Sergeant (to former baseball umpire, now rookie): Say can't you even wash dishes?
Umpire: No, sir. I usually dry-clean mine.
Sergeant: What do you mean, "dry-clean" dishes?
Umpire: Why, haven't I dusted off my plate?
Sergeant: Court-martialed and shot at sunrise.

In the news columns the other day appeared a paragraph that caught the telling of a ball player who had been arrested for robbing a bank. We have met many umpires who must have been related to Jesse James, but this is the first time we ever heard of a ball player rifling a vault. The poor nut must have been playing a post-season series with himself.

Hugo Bezdek, who needs some more line material, has written to Bill Hinchman to buy a frat house cap, a package of cigarettes and a copy of Jennings' rhetoric and hope the first train for Penn State college.

The Scott Perry case indicates that the market price of compromising decisions of the national commission is $2,500.

GREAT CATHEDRAL OF LEON

One of Europe's Most Wonderful Ecclesiastical Buildings is in a Shabby Little Spanish Town.

Surrounded by its prosperous wheat fields, the shabby little town of Leon in northern Spain seems peacefully indifferent to its out-at-elbows appearance, and to the fact that its streets are not enlivened by the bustle of modern industry. A few mule carts rattle restlessly over the roads, but otherwise it might easily be Sunday or a holiday and everyone away from home.

The humble dwellings of the Leonese lie in the very shadow of one of Europe's most wonderful cathedrals, made possible by their ancestors' generous gifts and wrought by a master. The cathedral is the center from which radiates the tranquility and harmony felt throughout the town. Its spires and towers of softly yellowed stone rise in gracious welcome above a mass of trees. A multitude of windows give promise of a bright, sunlit interior. Carved columns and figures frame the portals, and quaint gargoyles gower from nooks in the cornices, as if to ward off all evil.

Inside the hall is vast and silent, lighted by scores of stained glass windows. The maker of the windows indulged his taste for bright and glowing color to an extent that would have been disastrous in a small church; but through the sweeping length of the vaulted nave the colors blend and fall in soft, rich shades. In this sanctuary of light rests the king who first planned the cathedral and made Leon a city of wealth and palaces. Since his day the city has been destroyed and plundered and rebuilt. It never again reached its former greatness, but the king's cathedral rose from its ashes, and stands now more beautiful than the founder had planned.

LEGAL NOTICES

HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

Stephen Schuler.

Two interesting letters have been received from Sergeant Stephen B. Schuler, son of Mrs. John C. Schuler, 214 N. Main street. Stephen is with the 1st Army Supply Train, American Post Office No. 721 A. E. P.

September 11, 1918.
The rainy season has started over here and it has been raining several days. Some claim it will last for a month and then get cold.

I will soon be five months since I left the states and I hope we get the latter by the time I see five months more—the sooner the better. The government is certainly looking out for the faring of its boys over here. We have tobacco issues every few days and soon will be getting one-half pound of chocolate every ten days.

The Y. M. C. A.'s are doing wonderful work and put on some very good entertainments. They have a regular circuit of entertainers who go from place to place.

I have met many boys from Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, Appleton, etc., but no Janesville boys as yet. Have sent you a "Stars and Stripes," a paper which is published for the soldiers over here and will send one every week if convenient.

You probably would like to know how I get along with this "Chinese" language over here. Well, it is pretty deep stuff, but I pick up a few words now and then and I figure that if I am over here forty-three years I will probably know the alphabet.

You asked me if I was in the first division still. Our division is in the 1st Army Corps and we are part of the first 500,000 of the A. E. F. We have been working (the boys are at present) at a new camp, building an auto park which is about completed and its capacity is 5,000 cars.

We are not allowed to send any postals or photographs or to mention the town we are in, due to the fact that we are in an advanced section. Some of the letters we get would certainly make our superiors as they have been canonized as they travel from D. O. to P. O. after us.

The French certainly believed in building their churches and cathedrals to last. I have seen some that were built in the 14th century and still in use.

I received a letter from Carl Safady and he said that Gladys Chase had arrived over here O. K., but he didn't say what outfit he was with.

If you ever have a few pictures to send don't hesitate as they will be very welcome.

September 20, 1918.
Your letter received which was very welcome. "Tony" must have written about the same time, as I received her letter at the same time I received yours.

We just got back from a five day trip to the front so I will try and write a little of our experience. We were taken down to a show given by the boys of our division at a "certain" theater when the order came for us to "partee" to take out a convoy of trucks. We loaded up at 2 P. M. and then departed driving mostly all night. The moon was shining brightly which helped very much.

When we got to our supposed destination some of the trucks got on the wrong road or else they didn't turn where the rest did and I think they would have driven into Germany if some M. P. hadn't stopped them.

Four of us came back to camp in a Ford after we had delivered our supplies and turned over our trucks. We rode about an hour and had a blow-out so we had some supper, bread and jam and camped for the night. Another boy and myself slept between a couple of blankets out in a field as there wasn't room for four of us in the Ford with our packs, etc. Then it started to rain and we got a good soaking, but we have had so much rain over here it doesn't bother us much now—we are starting to get webbed feet.

There are quite a few Salvation Army huts in the section we were at and they were the first I have seen here. We stopped at one and the lady who was there with her two daughters said she didn't have much to eat for us as they just made a thousand doughnuts the night before and sent them to the trenches, but she would make some wheat cakes. "Oh! Baby!" We had a couple of cups of coffee each with milk and sugar and several platters of cakes and we felt like a million dollars.

We then started for camp and got there just in time for supper. I am hoping to meet some boys I know on some of my trips soon, as I meet most everybody else. The lady at the Salvation army hut used to live just 15 miles from Janesville and she knew many Janesville people.

One afternoon several of us witnessed a few air fights and saw many bombs burst near the front. The boys up high he looked about the size of a mosquito, but none of the bombs hit them while I was there.

We were also in a night raid and most of the boys stood out in the open to watch the fire works instead of crawling into a dugout. "Fritz" even had the nerve to start his machine guns going.

Sergt. Stephen B. Schuler.
Richard Dunphy.
Mrs. P. P. Ryan of Fianover, received the following letter from her brother, Richard Dunphy, somewhere in France.

October 15, 1918.
Co. F, 4th Ammunition Train.
I am fine. Got your letter last week. Have been too busy to write the last three weeks. Have been at the front. Believe me it is a pretty lively place. Have been living in a dugout right in front of the big guns. It was hard to get much sleep for a while, but am getting used to it. I guess a fellow can get used to most anything. You said the Kennedy lady had landed in France. I never saw any of the lads from back home. Have been on the lookout but never run across any of them. They are likely all in a different division.

Frank Dooley has a good job if he likes being on the water. It has been raining for the last two weeks. I sometimes think we might be on the road back before the weather gets too bad for we are giving them all they want.

I will say goodbye for this time. As ever,
RICH.

Evansville News

Evansville Celebrates With a Vim.

Evansville, Nov. 8.—All the pent-up feelings of the past year and a half gave vent to wild demonstrations yesterday shortly after twelve o'clock when word flashed along the wire that Germany had entered into an armistice with the allies, and her armies had laid down their arms. Within a very short time after the receipt of the message, every whistle in the city was being blown, church bells, school bells, fire bells were ringing, automobile sirens whistles and horns honking frantically in fact anything and everything that would add to the racket was called into play, and staid conservative Evansville went wild with enthusiasm. All work was suspended, shops, stores, etc., closed for several hours—for who could work in the face of such glorious news? A parade started by the men of the shops and augmented in numbers as it passed along the line, paraded the streets. Their music consisted of the banging of cymbals, chains, anything that could be picked up at the shops and Old Glory was proudly carried at the head of the procession. The Evansville military band was out, automobiles gaily decorated with the flags of our nation, and filled with cheering occupants, followed the band and ladder truck which carried the band boys and paraded the business streets. In the evening the demonstration was carried on the band was out and in spite of the rain, so was the crowd. The Kaiser was burned in effigy. A pavement dance was held on Main street, and altogether it was a general jubilee from start to finish. The event will long linger in the memory of every resident here, young and old felt alike.

All schools in Evansville will open Monday, and as there is no serious illness in Evansville at the present time, it is expected that they will open with a full attendance.
